Grace Place students give back

Seventy-two Grace Place for Children and Families' Academy of Leaders middle school students volunteered at a meal-packing event at Meals of Hope in Naples. The students packed 20,000 meals that will be distributed at local food pantries across five counties.

"It was wonderful to experience the kids giving back to the community," said Monica Tovar, student and family coordinator at Grace Place. "The kids had fun and learned the importance of volunteering."

Katie, a middle school student who volunteered in the packing event, shared that this was one of her favorite things she's done at Grace Place this summer. "It made me feel good to know, even as a kid, I could help people. It made me feel like I could do more," remarked Katie.

"Meals of Hope was happy to collaborate with Grace Place and to have their students participate in a meal packing event. We loved the opportunity to have the kids learn the importance of volunteering, and that it can be fun," said Steven Kissinger, chief operating officer at Meals of Hope.
