- Review of 21st CCLC goals/objectives

The Site Coordinator, Megan Dixon, talked about the purpose of the meeting and we reviewed the goals and objectives of the grant proposal. Introductions were completed.

- How we are serving students that really need extra support.

We are providing prevention services and activities through a partnership with David Lawrence Center that helps with student behaviors in the program, at school and at home. Students benefit from having homework support from certified teachers and volunteers. Some students are on a good track academically, and this program keeps them on track. The program provides a safe place where students can socialize and practice healthy communication with adults and their peers. There is trusted staff here

Students shared their favorite parts about coming to the Grace Place Afterschool Program, which included: Zumba (PBL), music classes (PBL) and the computer room (PBL). Parents shared that the strengths that they see for the program include: their children are happy to come to Grace Place, it is a free program, free transportation to and from the elementary schools, and adequate parent communication. Community Partners shared their thoughts on the program, which included: the program is organized, the use of Leader in Me and the 7 Habits, the high school and college students are a big help in the classrooms, campus is beautiful, and the schedule gives a break to kids from the structured school day. They also mentioned that Grace Place supports the entire family, not just the students, and that we are flexible with partners as far as scheduling, materials, etc.

Parents and community partners gave fantastic suggestions for the program which included: providing a dinner menu so that parents know what students are eating, and possibly smaller class sizes.

- Conclusion

Megan wrapped up the meeting by sharing that a main goal of hers is to hold training sessions for staff members (AP Leaders and LPA's) to improve the quality of instruction and supervision during the afterschool program. Megan also expressed that we are so thankful for the partnerships with community partners and supportive parents. Because of our teamwork, we are able to provide children with quality afterschool programming.
